A trend/problem/situation related to malaria, HIV/AIDS or tuberculosis is identified...

The government develops a strategic plan.

The country coordinating mechanism discusses the strategic plan with other players in order to develop a funding application.

The National Strategic Plan

Inclusive Country Dialogue Identifying Real Needs
The inputs from the country dialogue is collected and made a concept note...

...This sure is an ambitious proposal, but we have so much material!

I'll take care of that!

The concept note describes the proposal in detail:

- Epidemiological data
- Disease context
- Full expression of demand
- Priority interventions

The concept note is then submitted for review by an independent technical review panel.

Great program!

Yeah, but this detail could be optimized...

I have a suggestion.

Then the Global Fund's grant approvals committee reviews the improved concept note:

A fine program.

I agree...

Yup!

We recommend this level of funding!
Then grant-making begins, to define the agreed targets, activities and costs:

Finally, the global fund board approves the grant.
How do we get started?

1. Find your national strategic plan.

2. Participate in country dialogue with your CCM, so your needs and suggested interventions are considered.

3. Be ambitious - go for strong impact.

4. Discuss needs with Global Fund staff.

What's your idea?
